Encouraged by friends, Carolyn Lim, whose story appeared in Lifestyle in February, has written a book (Making Pink Lemonade) about her lightning ordeal and recovery. Cheerfully describing herself as "the girl in the wheelchair", Carolyn writes with candor about love and reclaiming her life. Order the book from her wonderfully sunny website www.makingpinklemonade.com ($17 - self-collection from The Canteen @Shaw Centre, address: 1 Scotts Road, #01-01 A1/A2 or $17.80 mailed within Singapore via SingPost).

In her book, she recalls learning how to walk again, staggering around in her living room, guided by her father. "On one particular occasion, I was walking unusually close to one of the wooden chairs in the living room. Suddenly, I tripped on my own foot and stumbled forward, heading for the wooden chair as I fell. Dad, seeing that he could not stop my fall in time, caught hold of me and swung me away from the chair. We both hit the floor with a heavy thud... Tears filled my eyes as I looked at him. He was fussing over me without a care for himself."
